Good Shepherd Services and Campaign for Children Rally at City Hall Demanding Restoration of Funding Vital Programs for NYC's Youth and Families

Nonprofits Good Shepherd Services and Campaign for Children are advocating for the restoration of funds for critical programs that support children, youth, and families in New York City.

NEW YORK, NY – On May 10th at 9 a.m., Good Shepherd Services and Campaign for Children NYC will rally at City Hall ahead of the New York City Committee on Children and Youth Executive Budget hearing. They're calling for the restoration of cuts to critical programs that support children, youth, and families across the city. Essential programs like COMPASS Afterschool, RHY Programming, PromiseNYC, Adult Literacy, and more, which are vital for the well-being and development of our youth and families, are still under threat of being cut this budget cycle. Multiple coalitions, families, and advocates will unite to demand these restorations and show support for NYC families.

About Good Shepherd Services

Good Shepherd Services is one of the largest nonprofit youth and family services providers in New York City, operating over 90 programs that support more than 30,000 residents across Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx. Guided by social and racial justice, Good Shepherd is located in communities that continue to face significant challenges due to longstanding and often systemic barriers, providing resources that build on their inherent strengths and expanding access to opportunities that help them thrive.
